

FRIENDS OF INNEREFFRAY LIBRARY

GUIDE TO USE OF THE NEW WEBSITE

From March 2020 FOIL will have a new website which is a section within a new website for the library itself. It works in much the same way as many other websites and we hope you will be able to find your way around it easily. We have produced this short guide to help you get started and to explain how to book and pay for FOIL events. Any screen images you see in this guide are taken from a PC; if you use a tablet or a phone it may look different, but the content is all the same.

First go to www.innerpeffraylibrary.co.uk/friends-of-innerpeffray-library. This will bring up the Friends page, which looks like this:

You can get back to this page at any time by clicking on 'Friends' in the menu line.

Lower down the page there is information about FOIL and then details of the programme for the current year:

Wednesday 8th April, 7.30pm – The FOIL AGM will be followed by a talk by Chocolatier Charlotte Flower

A forester by training and experience Charlotte drifted into Perthshire some 15 years ago and now lives on the south side of Loch Tay. Looking to find a new career direction her foraging habit combined with an introduction to the world of fresh fine chocolates sparked a business idea – could the wild flavours of Perthshire work with chocolate? Had anybody tried this? It seemed not and in 2007 the business was established.

Charlotte Flower Chocolates are a unique product, the extensive palette of natural flavours are picked from the wild, processed immediately in Charlotte's home-based workshop so that flavours are still at their best. In addition to foraged flavours the company also used products created by other Scottish food producers such as Glen Lyon Coffee and Dewar's whisky. Inspiration is also taken from the rich historical heritage of Perthshire and plans for an Innerpeffray chocolate are in the pipeline.

Charlotte will offer a chocolate tasting at this talk – perfect for Easter week!

To book to attend the event, position your cursor over the word Shop on the main menu. This will bring up a sub-menu and you click on Events.
