The Library of Innerpeffray

The Borrowers' Register

Amongst the most precious books at Innerpeffray are the Borrowers' Registers. These records of every person who borrowed from the Library between 1747 and 1968 give us a fascinating window into the past. They are a priceless social historical record through which we can come to know those who used the Library, what they read, and the different walks of life from which they came.

Write yourself into the pages of history...

Although we no longer lend out books, Innerpeffray continues to be a special place to many who visit, use, and enjoy the library today. The Innerpeffray Register is an extension of the Borrowers' Register, created to record the experiences and thoughts of today's library users and visitors.

Everyone who makes a contribution to the Library is invited to become part of the story of Innerpeffray by adding a 'leaf' to the Register, which is enclosed with this leaflet. We would love to know what makes Innerpeffray special to you—so we've made space on the leaf for you to write a little about your experience or connection to the place.

Impressions or thoughts to write about:

- ◆ what prompted your visit?
- ◆ your response to the location and atmosphere
- ◆ any particular book that you may have consulted
- ◆ any particular topic or sphere of interest for you
- ◆ what book would you borrow, if you could?

Leave your leaf...

Send us your filled-out 'Innerpeffray Register' leaf in the pre-addressed envelope included with this leaflet, along with your personal details form. Your leaf will then be bound in the register and become part of the living legacy of Innerpeffray.
